Leadership is one of the most overlooked, yet also the most important part of environmental activism. A good leader is the key to NGO's success in impacting on their society.

Especially for environmental activism, a leader is not someone who tells people what to think, but who can listen to what a community needs.

“NGOs have quite an important role to play in sustainable development...”

A social enterprise like ours, The Veg Box, is where we’re creating a community for farmers to grow together sustainably.

We need to understand that apart from the demand [for NGO activities] we need to have the supply, so that we have spaces, people and communities which can grow together.”
